BACKERS & ACCESSORIES

Target backers add rigidity to paper targets in windy and harsh weather conditions. When your paper target gets too many holes in it, just add a fresh one on top. Target pasters are designed to cover bullet holes and extend the life of your paper and cardboard targets and are ideal for training.

PRODUCT VARIATIONS

ACTION TARGET ADVANTAGE

- Action Target steel targets use through hardened AR500 or AR550 steel to make the target last longer and reduce pitting and pocking.
- Action Target steel targets have flat surfaces which create predictable and safe bullet splatter patterns.
- All Action Target steel targets are angled between 15 and 45 degrees to dissipate the energy of the bullet and direct splatter toward the ground.

ICON KEY

- Do not use ammunition that travels slower than 400 fps or faster than 3000 fps
- Do not use armor piercing, steel core, green tip, or other ammunition designed to damage steel
- Do not use BB's, air soft pellets, or steel shot
- Download the Safe Steel Shooting Guide at Shop.ActionTarget.com

AT-128 / 1/2" AR550

The E-50 Silhouette is the first commercially available target from Action Target capable of handling .50 BMG and is the only steel target on the market made from 1/2" AR550 steel. Designed according to U.S. Marine Corps steel target specifications with a 20-degree angled shooting surface and standard military E-type silhouette proportions, this target is made for everything from heavy military firearms training to long-range rifle shooting. With a patent pending stand design that keeps the target grounded even with the largest calibers, you don't need to worry about using sand bags to keep it upright or going downrange to reset it.

- Ideal for all calibers up to .50 BMG
- 64" height
- 146 lbs.
- 40"x19.5" torso
- Patent Pending design

PT IDPA PRACTICE TORSO

AT-225 / 3/8" AR550

The NEW PT IDPA Practice Torso is the official steel practice target of the International Defensive Pistol Association (IDPA) and one of the most effective training tools for competitive shooting. It features a regulation torso shape including the -1 and -0 scoring zones with reactive swinging plates for the -0 head circle and center mass circle. The reactive zones are also great for precision rifle training.

- 12"x25.5" Torso
- Reactive 4" Scoring Circle

POPPER

PROVEN TRAINING CLASSIC

Popper style targets have been around for decades, and there's a reason why. Due to their adjustable sensitivity that replicates real life threats, they remain a relevant training tool today. Action Target makes one of the best poppers in the industry. Created with competition and training in mind and built for durability, the popper is a must have for any serious shooter.

The patented Last Stand system is the most portable and longest lasting gong stand available. The leg brackets and target holders are made of a self-healing polymer that can handle hundreds of rounds before replacement. Compare that to ropes and chains that can break in one shot and you'll see the value. The leg brackets make adjusting each leg height fast and easy to get stability on any terrain.

RIMFIRE

FUN THAT LASTS

Action Target's Rimfire line of steel targets has something for everyone. From dueling trees and plate racks to reactive and static targets, the rimfire line is an economical and fun option for shooting .22 at close distances. Shooters of all ages and skill levels can improve their shooting and have fun in the process.

STEEL TARGET PAINT

The perfect paint for steel targets. Steel Target Paint covers surfaces quickly and dries fast! This unique, water-based formula protects steel targets from rust and oxidation. Steel Target Paint was designed for shooting ranges, shooting clubs, parks and private ranges and for match competition. Common enamel paints dry slow and have typically 40% less paint in the can than Steel Target Paint. Steel Target Paint lays down a matte finish which diffuses sunlight and mirage.

- Superior coverage
- 40% more paint
- Matte, no glare finish
- High flow button
- Water-based formula
- Very high resins/solids content for maximum visibility

STEEL HARDNESS

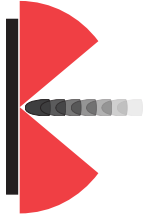

Steel hardness is essential to the quality of a steel target. Through hardened, abrasion resistant (AR) steel is available in Brinell Hardness Levels from AR350-AR700. The lower the number, the softer the steel and the higher the number, the more brittle the steel. Action Target only uses AR500 or AR550 steel because they provide the perfect balance of toughness and strength for shooting.

SOFT STEEL

Softer steel is more likely to pock, crater, and deform when shot, causing an uneven surface which makes bullet splatter unpredictable.

UNPREDICTABLE SPLATTER

HARD STEEL

Properly hardened steel resists pocking and cratering which makes bullet splatter predictable and consistent.

CONSISTENT SPLATTER

TOTALLY FLAT SURFACES

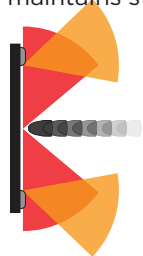

Steel targets need to have a perfectly flat surface in order to be safe for shooters and bystanders. The use of brackets and bolts to hold targets creates angles that make bullet splatter unpredictable. Also, improper welding of the steel creates soft areas on the steel that can crater or pock. Action Target's proprietary manufacturing process maintains steel integrity and keeps shooting surfaces perfectly flat.

BRACKETS

Primary splatter deflects off bracket angles which can direct secondary splatter towards the shooter.

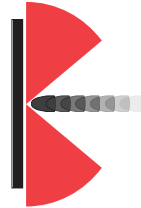

UNPREDICTABLE SPLATTER

BOLTS

Primary splatter deflects off bolt heads or sunk steel which can direct secondary splatter towards the shooter.

UNPREDICTABLE SPLATTER

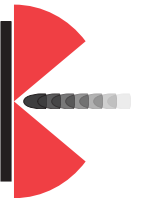

FLAT STEEL

Perfectly flat surface which eliminates secondary splatter and makes bullet splatter predictable and consistent.

CONSISTENT SPLATTER

PROPERLY ANGLED STEEL

The angle of the steel target makes a dramatic difference in the way that the splatter reacts. The steeper the angle, the more splatter is deflected towards the ground and the more the energy is dissipated. Through years of research Action Target has been able to determine the best angles for each target.

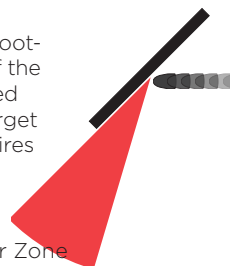

90° ANGLE

Splatter is evenly distributed in a circular shape. Some splatter is still directed towards the shooter.

15° ANGLE

Ideal for most shooting since most of the splatter is directed down and the target face design requires less steel.

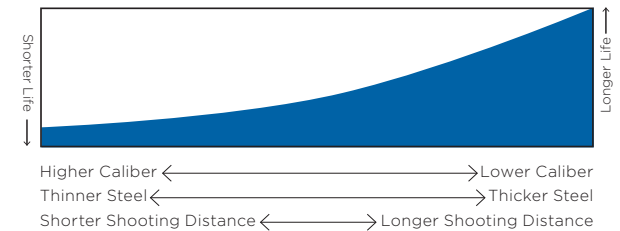

45° ANGLE

Can be shot at closer range with more powerful ammo, but the target face requires more steel and additional cost.

■ Steel Plate ■ Primary Splatter Zone ■ Secondary Splatter Zone

TARGET LIFE EXPECTANCY

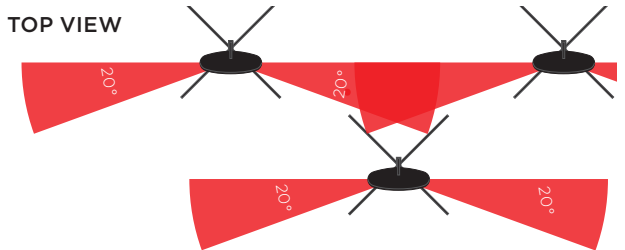

Although there is no exact life expectancy for steel targets, proper use extends their lives. The best way to extend a target's life is to use the correct ammunition and steel combination, lower calibers, thicker steel, and longer shooting distances.

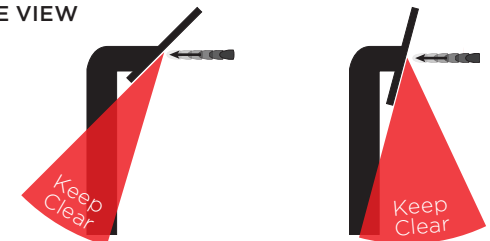

TARGET PLACEMENT

When setting up multiple steel targets consider the effects of secondary splatter. To prevent splatter from hitting other targets, ensure that the targets are outside the 20° splatter zone of another target. Also, the ground where targets are placed can affect splatter. Avoid ground with rocks and cement and ensure that the ground is clear within the in the splatter area.

 - High air flow with no increase in resistance
 - Low resistance and energy cost
 - Long life at standard air flow rates
 - Reduced disposal costs, less contribution to landfills

PORTABLE TRAPS

Nobody does bullet containment better than Action Target with our large selection of bullet traps, clearing traps, and rubber range blocks.

RUBBER SHOOTING RANGE BLOCK

RDB STOCK

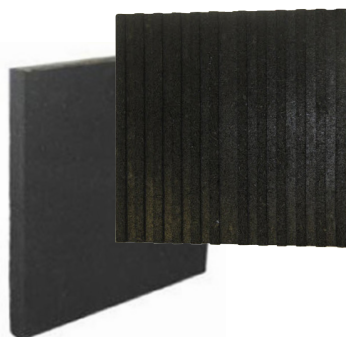

- Extremely dense rubber block made of high pressure and weather resistant high tech polymer binder
- Weight: 90 lbs.
- Size: 24"x9"x12"
- Encapsulate rifle, shotgun, and handgun rounds from any distance, reducing ricochet and airborne lead
- Not designed to be used as a dedicated bullet trap, and should be backed with Armor plate steel

RUBBER SHOOTING RANGE PANEL

RDP STOCK

RDP-ACOUSTIC

- 24"x24"x2", 33 lbs.
- Combines high pressure and a weather resistant high tech polymer binder for an extremely dense and consistent panel
- Mounts to existing armor steel plate
- Reduces chance of bullet back splatter, ricochet, and airborne lead
- Independent testing confirms absorption of 9mm Luger 124 grain, FMJ rounds at >5° and 5.56 62 grain at >10°

PORTABLE BULLET TRAP

BRASS WHEEL / 801-20372

OFF-ROAD WHEEL / 801-17822

- Used in conjunction with MATCH™ shoot house training
- Can be quickly positioned anywhere, allowing for less predictable engagement areas than wall mounted targets
- Extend the life of MATCH™ walls
- Reduce the recommended frequency of routine inspections
- 1/2" thick AR500 impact plate
- 2" thick rubber fascia contains splatter and allows for direct target mounting
- Stands at 6' tall
- 45"x25" target surface
- No exposed bolts or brackets in the target zone
- Convenient dump tray for collecting spent lead and jackets
- Can be used outdoors and indoors
- Replacement parts are available
